A PHILIP WEBB PILLAR GRATE (SOLD)

This imposing pillar grate of the Queen Square type was designed by Philip Webb (1831-1915), the founder of the Arts and Crafts Architectural Movement in the 1860's. Original drawings of this grate are archived at the V & A Collections and shown here. The grate has a curved front and pillar-style legs. The finish is in black-iron with polished brass ball finials, collar feet and dolly detail. Curved shoulders sit above hob-fronts decorated with finely cast ornate flower detail. The rear legs in wrought-iron below a cast-iron fire back. A fire grate of this type still exists at Kelmscott House (William Morris's last residence) in Chiswick and a smaller version in the Drawing Room at Nether Hall in Suffolk. Another pillar grate also existed at No 1 Palace Green, London. Restored.

Height of burning area: 31 1/2"

Circa 1860

SKU: AN2430 | Category: Archive |

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Width (ins)

589 Wands 30 1/8 koad, London SW8 3JD T: +44 (0)20 7720 2660 www.gibilarodesign.com E: info@gibilarodesign.co.uk

info@gibilarodesign.co.uk +44 (0) 20 7720 2660

GIBILARO DESIGN LTD

Height (ins) 30 1/2

Depth (ins) 15 1/4

Maker Philip Webb

589 Wandsworth Road, London SW8 3JD T: +44 (0)20 7720 2660 www.gibilarodesign.com E: info@gibilarodesign.co.uk